Three recently retired town officials talk about 3 decades of change

By Don Staruk

The town changed a lot in the last 30 years and three men who molded much of that change retired last month: Myron "Mike" Muise, treasurer and collector; Salvatore "Sam" DeSalvo, building inspector; and John Avery, town engineer.

The three, who have a combined total of more than 66 years of service to the town, took advantage of the town's early retirement program in June. All three also were raised in Andover.

Mr. Muise, of 20 Alderbrook Road, was born in Shawsheen, in a building that is now

Bowling alley faces foreclosure

By Don Staruk

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has begun foreclosure proceedings on the old Andover Lanes bowling alley building, at 32-34 Park St., and the owners are not going to attempt to stop the property from going to auction.

"No. Why would you pay for a building you couldn't use? Why would you want to keep it if you don't use it?" Benjamin Osgood said last week.

Mr. Osgood, of North Andover, and C. Bradley Richards, of New Hampshire, bought the building in 1986 with plans to develop it into a series of small shops. They were stopped by a town bylaw because they couldn't provide parking spaces required for

"Now look," little Lauren Pajerski seems to be saying from her position in the car, "this is how a person drives safely." That's Taylor Goehring in the front seat with Lauren, and David Shuman is in the back seat, watching traffic from that vantage. The three were playing recently in Penguin Park on Burnham Road.

Education will be delivered in a different way

This is the final story in a two-part series on how the recently passed educational reform legislation will affect Andover.

By Lisa Boudreau

During the coming school year the state will pump an additional $140 million in aid to communities, and more in each of the following seven years. The new Education Reform Bill, which was signed into law on June 18, not only changes the way public education in the commonwealth will be funded, but it also changes the way education will be delivered. And it provides more formal opportunities for parents, community members and others who traditionally may not have had the chance, to become involved in education on the local level.

'The money helps. We can get class sizes down and hire media and support people...'

Tom Meyers

"I don't see the Education Reform changes as a panacea, but I do think it is a positive step forward," said state Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover.

Funding the bill

Andover has been promised an additional $274,000 in state aid for the coming school year. In order for communities to be eligible to receive their share of the $140 million, each must spend a certain amount on public education. According to town and school finance officials, Andover meets education-spending requirements and will be eligible for the additional money promised by the state.

The money will be used in part to fund mandates such as professional development for teachers, textbook and equipment upkeep, maximum pupil-teacher ratios and more.

Tom Meyers, president of Andover teachers' union, said the additional $274,000 this year will help, but can't come close to replacing what Andover has lost. He said approximately $6 million in cuts has been made since the late 1980s.

"The money helps. We can get class sizes down and hire media and support people ... but I'd like to see it

Trauma intervention program coming to Andover

By Jennifer Lewis

When accidents occur, the confusion of medical and safety procedures can often be so overwhelming that emergency medical trainees don't have the time to cope with emotionally distraught victims. The Trauma Intervention Program, based in San Diego, Calif., works through emergency response teams to comfort and assist emotionally injured victims in their time of need.

Local branch

According to Jane Thompson, who is creating a TIP branch in the Merrimack Valley, the program may be in Andover by late September. Andover, North Andover, Methuen and Lawrence have each committed $500 to support TIP, according to Ms. Thompson.

TIP assists family members and friends following a natural or unexpected death, victims of rape, assault, robbery, burglary, and fire, disoriented or lonely older persons, persons involved in motor vehicle accidents, persons who are distraught and seeking immediate support, and family members of a person who has completed suicide.

How it happened

Ms. Thompson, who lives in Methuen, saw the program on the Today Show in February and decided that she wanted to bring the program to the East Coast. "With my personal experience and background, I very much wanted to bring it to Massachusetts," she said. "It's such a doable program and it's very necessary."

Jane Thompson

Ms. Thompson spoke with Methuen Town Manager Don Desantis who suggested she make the program mini-regional. Ms. Thompson has received a "very positive" reaction from local community leaders and endorsements from the police and fire chiefs of Methuen, Lawrence, Andover and North Andover.

"TIP serves as an important resource to fire, police and hospitals because it copes with emotionally-distraught victims that they aren't able to cope with," Ms. Thompson said.

Since 1985

TIP has been operating since 1985 in three counties in California and has most recently started, in Portland, Fla. It is a non-profit, volunteer program that works through authorized emergency personnel. According to Ms. Thompson, TIP has helped an estimated 1,254,000 people in California. Currently there are 140 volunteers working on the West Coast. It is on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. "We don't just fall out of the woodwork," Ms. Thompson said.

Anyone who is 18 or older can volunteer, but must undergo a "very intense and grueling 50 to 60 hours of training," Ms. Thompson said. "People are thoroughly screened, taught all aspects of emotional first-aid and stressful situations."

Ms. Thompson said 85 percent of the volunteers in California are women and the average age is 46. "There are volunteers from all walks of life," she said. "Housewives, blue-collar workers and white-collar workers all volunteer; all you need is a big heart and a willingness to help your neighbor."

While the program is not about "delving into people's personal lives," Ms. Thompson said there are police background checks on all prospective volunteers because there is a very intimate relationship between the volunteer and the victim. "We stay with that person from two hours to all day, depending on the situation, until the next level of support arrives."

The program only offers immediate emotional aid. "There's not an on-going rapport with the victim," Ms. Thompson said. "There

Andover donates goods to flood victims

By Allyson Bates
and Don Staruk

After seeing the plight of the flooded Midwest night after night on television, Betty Singleton of 14 Elysian Drive, along with 35 neighbors, formed an Action Flood Relief to aid suffering families.

"We really worked as a neighborhood effort," Mrs. Singleton said. "My table and floor are covered with brown bags. We have 15 to 16 grocery bags filled with supplies."

During the weekend, the neighbors collected non-perishable items such as paper goods, health and beauty aids, shampoo, soap, toilet paper, diapers, infant formula, microwave meals and canned goods. They drove the donations to the North Shore Shopping Center in Peabody as part of the Action 4 Flood Relief. The food will be taken to warehouses in the Midwest where it will be sorted and distributed.

Mrs. Singleton contacted Martha Francis of the Food Bank of Boston "to make sure there was still a need," and began their neighborhood fundraising by making fliers with her 4-year old daughter, Rachel. Ben Bibler, 8, distributed the letters in neighbors' mailboxes last Friday.

"It is the American way," explained Mrs. Singleton. "We decided to put our efforts toward the American way. It's a great lesson for us and our children. Anyone can get caught up in a natural disaster and it's nice to know that people can help."

Faith Lutheran helps, too

Meanwhile, Pastor John Heydenreich of Faith Lutheran Church, 360 S. Main St., decided just before services last Sunday to make an extra collection to help the flood victims in the Midwest. His last minute gesture raised more than $1,000.

"It was a spur-of-the-moment thing," Pastor Heydenreich said this week.

The Lutheran Brotherhood Fraternal Benefit organization has set up a $100,000 fund from which they will match donations for flood relief until the fund is gone, Pastor Heydenreich said. He sent the check for a little more than $1,000 this week.

Pastor Heydenreich said he was impressed that those at the services, which he said totaled about 130 persons, came up with such a significant offering on the spur of the moment.

"We'll continue to have special offerings for the next few weeks," he said.

Anyone interested in contributing so that the Lutheran church can apply a donation to the matching funds should contact Pastor Heydenreich at Faith Lutheran, 475-4059.

is no legal, clinical, or psychological advice."

Other forms of support

In addition to emotional support, volunteers may also arrange for shelter, food, clothing, and transportation. They may notify family and friends, serve as a liaison between the victims and emergency and hospital authorities, help arrange follow-up services, and provide information and referral to appropriate agencies for ongoing assistance.

Don't go it alone

The response level of TIP is very immediate.

"These are the first critical hours in a person's life," Ms. Thompson said. "Everyone has been terrified or stressed out once in their life and they shouldn't have to be alone."

Volunteers are also needed to fill administrative and fundraising duties with TIP. "There are lots of other things to do besides being an on-call volunteer," Ms. Thompson said.

There will be an on-going need to fund the program and Ms. Thompson currently is working with the communities for their financial support. "Funding is 50 percent from local government and 50 percent from private/corporate sponsorship," she said.

It was a combination of personal experience and her education background that led Ms. Thompson to start the program in the Merrimack Valley. "Every person has their own personal reasons for doing things," she said.

Ms. Thompson's background is in project management.

"I don't believe people need to be alone in a time of crisis," she said. "The Merrimack Valley is just crying for this kind of service."

For further information, contact Jane Thompson, Trauma Intervention Program of Merrimack Valley, 37 Appaloose Drive, Methuen, MA 01844; 685-9931.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

UNDUE TOOTH SENSITIVITY

The average person may think that he or she suffers alone with a tooth sensitivity problem, but this is hardly the case. Studies show that hypersensitivity afflicts one in seven adult patients. Half are below the age of 30, while 42 percent are no older than 25. This problem occurs as the hard tissue (dentin) beneath the outer enamel layer becomes exposed, largely due to plaque formation and the production of acids which sensitize the dentin layer. To prevent hypersensitivity, it is certainly best to keep teeth clean and gums healthy with regular brushing and flossing at home and professional cleanings in the office. Once hypersensitivity becomes a problem, the dentist may treat it by covering exposed dentin surfaces with bonding resins, fluoride products, and/or calcium hydroxide.

We try to make all our patients' visits to our offices as relaxing as possible. We want you to feel comfortable with us no matter what your dental problems, from hypersensitive teeth to the need for major restorative care. If you're hesitant about visiting the dentist, for any reason, we invite you to experience gentle dental care at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93. Office hours are Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6, and by appointment - call us at 475-2431.

PS: Three out of five patients who experience hypersensitivity are female.

Officer pulls woman from burning truck

By Don Staruk

An Andover police patrolman pulled an unconscious Tewksbury woman from her burning pickup truck on Route 125 Friday morning, July 23, moments before the vehicle was completely engulfed by flames.

Dawn Sylvester, 21, of Tewksbury, the driver and sole occupant of the truck, was treated for head injuries at Lawrence General Hospital and transferred to Massachusetts General Hospital where she remained Tuesday. Her condition was not available.

At 2:32 a.m., police received a report of a truck flipped over and on fire on Route 125. Patrolman Dennis Lane arrived on the scene first and other motorists directed him to the truck, which had not flipped but was at least 100 feet into the woods where it had sheared off at least two large pine trees, according to Dan Prestia, a dispatcher who was working at the police station at the time.

The engine of the vehicle was on fire, and fire had begun to spread to the surrounding pine needles and brush. The driver's side door was pinned shut by a chain-link fence, so Officer Lane scrambled over the bed of the truck to the passenger side. At first he couldn't see anyone in the vehicle, but then spotted the unconscious Ms. Sylvester on the seat. He dragged her out of the truck and away from the vehicle as fire spread to the cab and the rest of the truck.

A state police trooper and Andover Patrolman Lee Britton arrived on the scene and helped get her out to a waiting ambulance. Patrolman Lane drove the Lawrence General Hospital Advanced Life Support vehicle to the hospital for the paramedics, who were attending to the victim in the ambulance.

his heroic action at a selectmen's meeting in August.

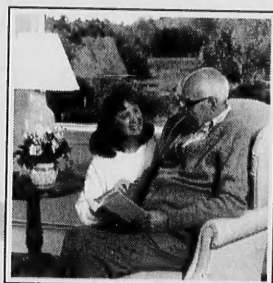

A witness said the pickup truck was traveling about 90 miles per hour when it went out of control, skidded and went into the woods still traveling at about 80 miles per hour. State police Trooper Linda Marlowe is investigating.

Officer Lane was treated for smoke inhalation and was then released. Officer Britton injured an elbow in the incident.

Police Chief James Johnson said it was likely Patrolman Lane would be commended for

She's Up With People!

By Allyson Bates

"My parents literally dragged me to the performance," explained Diane Beekler, of 125 Main St. "But the kids started running up the aisles, singing and dancing. There were only around 100 kids but it felt like millions. They were so good."

After experiencing Up With People last September, Ms. Beekler decided she wanted to get involved with the group.

Known for its widely acclaimed musical show, Up With People is the international, educational and cultural program that aims to build understanding among nations and spark people into action in meeting the needs of their communities, countries and the world.

A two-hour interview, resume and photo, along with six weeks of anxious anticipation landed her a position in the January '94

Diane Beekler

"World of Motion" tour. "I realized that you don't necessarily need talent," Ms. Beekler explained. "I can dance, but what they are really looking for is maturity, personality, and a willingness to serve the community. They're looking for a spark in a person."

With more than 8,000 applicants, only 700 are chosen nationally and 20 performers came from this state last year.

The group has five casts, consisting of 150 performers, 18-26 years old.

"We'll visit different communities, going to prisons, hospitals, beer factories, everywhere,"

Ms. Beekler said. "Anything the community needs done, we'll do. We might be painting buildings or picking up trash."

Throughout the year, the cast lives with 80 host families around the world. "An alumnus was telling me that in Mexico the cast sleeps in huts on dirt floors," Ms. Beekler said.

While visiting foreign places, cast members will visit some businesses. "If I stay with a lawyer or a diplomat, they might take me to work for the day so I can learn from the professionals," Ms. Beekler said. "The host families also provide meals, transportation and a place to sleep. Maybe they'll take us to a baseball game or something indigenous to that region."

The two-hour performances are of original songs that have international meaning. Songs send messages about AIDS, violence, prejudice, faith, drugs and prostitution. "Songs might be from Japan, a calypso from Spain, Earth songs, trash or drugs, all with international flavor," Ms. Beekler said.

Prior to touring in January, Ms. Beekler will spend six weeks of intense training in Denver. Also, she must raise $11,500 for expenses. Up With People is a non-profit organization. ## BUSINESS

New business Chocolate is their business

By Jennifer Lewis

"You can tell a fresh chocolate because it cracks when you eat it," said Steve Weinstein, president of Chocolate By Design. "You can tell a fresh caramel because it stretches a mile when you pull it from your mouth."

Mr. Weinstein has opened a new location of his business, at 16 Main St. He prides himself on the quality and uniqueness of his chocolates and the courteous service his employees offer.

"Our chocolates are very different," he said. "There is nothing traditional in the sense of machine coated cream filling."

"Our service is the number one premiere importance to me," Mr. Weinstein said. "When people come into the store they are greeted right away, whether a child is buying a fireball or a corporation is paying $1,000 or $2,000 for an order."

The Andover store is the newest of three stores opened by Mr. Weinstein and his wife, Linda. The other two locations are in Marblehead and Boston.

"Linda made candy out of her kitchen," Mr. Weinstein said. "She made lots of wholesale accounts. The company was really her idea."

Chocolate By Design also owns a factory in Swampscott.

Despite the expansion of the company, Mr. Weinstein manages to keep the product close to home. "Everything is

Jane Gould, Episcopal minister, awarded grant

Jane S. Gould of Andover, associate rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Lawrence, and program director for resources and development at the Episcopal City Mission (ECM) in Boston, is one of 50 Americans selected by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation for Group XIII of its Kellogg National Fellowship Program.

The program began in 1980 to help the nation expand its pool of capable leaders. It is structured to increase individuals' skills and insights into areas outside their chosen disciplines so they can deal more creatively and effectively with society's complex problems.

Rev. Gould serves as a parish priest, coordinating Christian education, reaching out to families, engaging in advocacy work for children and leading worship. At ECM, she develops membership and fund-raising plans.

Previously, Rev. Gould assisted the rector at the Parish of the Epiphany in Winchester and served as a protestant chaplain at Phillips Academy.

In 1992, the Bishop of Massachusetts appointed Rev. Gould to the Diocesan Council. She coordi-

She has a bachelor's degree in American studies and history, and a master's degree in history from Stanford University. She earned her master's of divinity degree in biblical studies and pastoral theology at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge.

Each Kellogg Fellow receives a three-year $35,000 grant to fund a self-designed plan of study. Fellows who work for non-profit institutions receive an equivalent of 12.5 percent of their salaries up to $32,000. This allows employers to give Fellows the 25 percent release time necessary to take part in program activities.

Throughout the next three years, the Fellows will take part in educational seminars designed to strengthen their leadership skills. The seminars are hosted by the foundation at several sites across the United States and in Latin America.

Initial screening by a review team of 20 educational, civic and business leaders, including one foundation professional staff member, narrowed

Century 21 is moving to High Street

By Don Staruk

Century 21 Minuteman Realty is moving from the Musgrove Building at 2 Elm Square to 10 High St., and changing its name.

Jean Fitzgerald and Pam Lebowitz, co-owners of the real estate business, confirmed last week that they have purchased the building at 10 High St., the former carriage house to the building at 8 High St. They will begin the move this week and plan to be open in the new spot by Aug. 1.

"We're doing a great business here and we needed more space. We're going to more than double our office space over there," Ms. Fitzgerald said.

The building is set back off High Street and is accessible by a driveway from High Street. It has parking for 18 cars, something Century 21 didn't have at the Musgrove Building.

Chocolate By Design . . .

Mr. Weinstein named three of the chocolates after his three children. "Katie's Crunch" is named after his daughter who will be 5 in August.

"Twin Treats," named while his wife was expecting twins, is another very popular item and the most complicated of the chocolates. It is made of truffle and butter crunch on the inside, dark and milk chocolate on the outside and milk and white chocolate stripes around the chocolate exterior.

"Grand Sams" and "ul-TIM-ites" are two candies named after his 3-year-old twins - you guessed it - Sam and Tim.

Mr. Weinstein said he would like the company to expand a little bit. Currently, he is looking for new locations in Newton and Nantucket. However, he vows he will stop opening new locations "the day we cannot make and keep the chocolate fresh."

"A lot of large companies make Christmas chocolates in the spring and freeze them," Mr. Weinstein said. "We don't do that. We start making them in November and will deliver in the middle of the night; there have been delivery trucks leaving the factory at 3 a.m."

Chocolate By Design also provides corporate catering and party catering.

"We provide catering from swans to party favors to bah mitzvahs to corporate chocolate," Mr. Weinstein said.

Chocolate By Design is currently the in-house chocolatier for Jordan Marsh. The company also is working with Filene's to create replicas of Waterford Crystal in chocolate.

"They are exact replicas and will be offered as free gifts with purchases at Filene's and six other department stores across the country," Mr. Weinstein said.

Other creations of Chocolate By Design include a four pound bunny and a gigantic chocolate castle. The company has more than 3,000 molds.

"We don't say 'no,'" Mr. Weinstein said. "We strive to give the customers what they ask for and more. When we do a chocolate swan, we will match the color of the party to the animal. People will give us swatches of fabric; we will even dip cashews in colors to match the decor of the party."

Chocolate By Design also offers a wide assortment of the most popular candies: cashew turtles, almond bark, chocolate-dipped fruit, pecan turtles and three kinds of butter crunch.

"We have 300 kinds of penny candy," Mr. Weinstein added.

Some of Chocolate By Design's latest creations-in-the-making include a dark chocolate cranberry coconut haystack and marshmallows stuffed with peanut butter and chocolate fudge. "We come up with three to four new types of chocolates per month," Mr. Weinstein said.

According to Mr. Weinstein, the Andover location brings a new style to Chocolate By Design. "We had black and white tile in the old store," he said. "This is literally the flagship store for the '90s." This story has a lot of white oak and brass on the counters, walls, displays and ceiling.

Mr. Weinstein said Andover is a great location for his new store: "It's not only residential but a business community as well."

In addition to the general merchandising manager and Mr. Weinstein, employees for the new location are all from Andover and North Andover.

Mr. Weinstein said Mimi Queen, the Andover location's manager, is the store's biggest asset.

"Mimi is a super person and has been a caterer in Andover for 20 years," he said. "A lot of people know her."

Chocolate By Design also does charity work.

"We do about four to five charities per year," Mr. Weinstein said. "I believe in giving back to the community."

Even after being around chocolate all day, Mr. Weinstein still has his favorite selections depending on his mood. He includes "Twin Treats" and the "Goosey Pretzel" in his list of favorites.

"I like my chocolates," Mr. Weinstein said. "We are not so high end that you bite into something and wonder what it is."

"We're in a gift business," Mr. Weinstein said. "You get a hand-shrunk wrapped classy gift on a tray with a bow, not just a box of chocolates."

Century 21 is moving

"Now we'll have plenty of parking for everybody," Ms. Fitzgerald said.

The building has 182 feet of frontage on North Main Street and 3,500 square feet of office space. That office space compares to the 1,800 square feet Century 21 currently occupies in the Musgrove Building.

The new site has three stories with offices on the first two floors and a residence on the third floor. A tenant who is now in the third floor apartment will remain, said the owners.

The first two floors are vacant and some of that space will be available for lease.

"We're going to occupy the whole first floor and part of the second," Ms. Fitzpatrick said.

The pair has plans to completely renovate the structure's Victorian architecture inside and out.

"It's going to be just marvelous," Ms. Fitzgerald said.

"We're going to change the name to Century 21 Carriage House. So the 'Minuteman' will be gone," Mr. Fitzpatrick said.

A retaining wall prevents access to the property from North Main Street except for a steeply sloped wooded area behind the building that opens on North Main Street near Perfecto's Muffins and Bagels. That area behind the building and leading down toward Perfecto's will be developed into a park-like area with a stairway open to the public, according to Ms. Fitzpatrick.

"We are so excited about this. This is a growth opportunity for us and we're just thrilled to death," Ms. Fitzgerald said.

Ms. Fitzgerald said she is not sure what would take Century 21's place in the Musgrove Building. A local businessman said he has discussed the possibility of opening a brokerage office in that spot, but he preferred not to elaborate on that possibility yet.

History

The carriage house building was built in 1913 by a Mr.

Punchard and was later owned by a Mr. Barnard, who also owned the main building at 8 High St., according to Ms. Fitzgerald. Mr. Barnard called the big building Barnard Elms, she said. The two buildings are now separate properties. The building in front of the carriage house on High Street was a wedding gift from Mr. Barnard to one of his children, Ms. Fitzgerald said.

YOUR HOME CAN STILL LOWER YOUR TAX BILL!

While tax reform has eliminated or is phasing out many popular deductions, owning your home still offers important tax benefits. If you are now renting, it might be a good idea to sit down with a professional Realtor who can show you just how much purchasing a home can save you each year.

Savings come in two ways. While most interest deductions are being phased out, you can still deduct the interest on your mortgage. You can also deduct your state or local property taxes. If you have a great deal of equity in your home, you may be able to deduct the interest on a home equity loan. Your Realtor can show you which savings apply to your situation. When you include tax savings in your comparison of owning a home vs. renting, you may be surprised by the results. And remember, when you are paying a mortgage instead of rent, you are building up equity as your home appreciates in value!

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at Century 21 Minuteman Realty. Call us at 475-1243, or stop by our office at 2 Elm Square.

Women, Negotiations & Divorce

Most property and custody settlements are reached through negotiations rather than litigation. Negotiations can be difficult when a marriage has broken down and feelings have been hurt. You may fear that you will be overpowered in this process by both your husband and your attorney, and be coerced into accepting a settlement which does not meet your needs. The advice of an attorney both knowledgeable in family law and sensitive to your fears and wishes can help you assert your rights and negotiate a fair settlement.

Talk is on 'Ballard Vale in its Heyday'

The Andover Historical Society presents "Ballard Vale in its Heyday: 1880-1910" for its Wednesday, Aug. 4, noontime program. This video depicts the history of a local mill village through old views from photographs, postcards and glass plate negatives.

According to researcher and narrator Ruth Sharpe, "...Ballard Vale was named for the Ballard family, who ran a tavern during the 17th and 18th centuries. It is thought to have been a Native American fishing ground and later the site of saw and grist mills.

"In the early 1830s, Ballard Vale was primarily woodland, but it had great potential, namely water power from the Shawsheen River. At that time Timothy Ballard owned all the land in that area and all the water rights along the river. In 1835 John Marland bought Timothy Ballard's mill privileges and he and his brother, William, left their father's business in Andover to incorporate the Ballard Vale Manufacturing Co. in 1836. Here they began to make fine white flannel by the double spinning method, the first time this process had been used in the United States.

"John had great foresight for this was the time when the first railroad was coming through Ballard Vale and Andover. John's father, Abraham was on the board of directors for the Wilmington and Andover Line and the first engine, called the Andover, ran in June 1835. In 1840 John began to build the Ballard Vale Machine Shop and started to build locomotives."

Bring lunch and come learn all about Ballardvale's origins. Andover's historical museum and research center is at 97 Main St.

Howard Thurman's life and legacy the topic of PA talk

When Howard Thurman, then head of San Francisco's Church of the Fellowship of All Peoples (said to be the first fully integrated church in the nation), accepted Boston University's invitation to become dean of its Marsh Chapel, George Makechnie, dean of Sargent College, was the first to write and welcome him.

The year was 1953 and BU's invitation to Dr. Thurman was the first ever extended to an African-American by a white college or university in America.

The Makechnies became devoted congregants after attending just one of Dr. Thurman's services at BU and the two men became close friends.

Following Dr. Thurman's death in 1981, Dean Makechnie decided that BU must be a dynamic part of the Thurman legacy. He initiated the Howard Thurman Fellowship to commemorate his birth and death each year and was instrumental in establishing BU's Howard Thurman Center, which Dean Makechnie has directed since its inception in 1986. The center houses materials on Dr. Thurman's ministry and is a base for outreach programs to area prisons.

Mr. Makechnie, dean emeritus and professor emeritus of Boston University Sargent College of Allied Health Professions, will speak about the life and legacy of Dr. Thurman on Friday, July 30, at 6:30 p.m. in Kemper Auditorium.

Dean Makechnie has chaired committees for the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreations, and was a founding member of the American Society of Allied Health Professions. He has published articles for educational journals, been honored by medical and physical education associations and initiated camping programs for public and private schools in the United States and abroad. In recognition of his 1979 work, Optimal Health: The Quest - A History of Sargent College, and of his 50 years of service to BU, Dean Makechnie was awarded an honorary doctorate.

Lay Chaplain Maurice Henderson will offer readings from the works of Dr. Thurman on Sunday Aug. 1, at 11 a.m. in Kemper Chapel and the Summer Session Gospel Choir will provide music.

All religious groups are invited to send their bulletins, press releases and worship service times to the Townsmen, 33 Chestnut St., to publish in these pages.

How the ed reform bill affects Andover...

go further," he said.

Communities can use a combination of state aid and local tax revenues to fund education. Property-rich communities will have to spend more local tax money and property-poor communities will receive more state aid to help reach mandated spending requirements that will be established by the state each year.

A "maintenance-of-effort" clause is included in the law. It requires a certain portion of communities' local taxes must be spent on financing public education. Spending requirements and contributions from local taxes will be re-calculated each year to account for inflation and enrollment changes.

The maintenance-of-effort clause was included so that cities and towns won't use only state aid payments to raise their school budgets to mandated levels. Some state and local officials believe this clause has the potential to pit town officials against school officials in vying for an equal share of local taxes and state aid.

"Town side officials complain because this maintenance-of-effort may place a burden on towns if problems arise and money has to be shifted to schools first," said state Senator John O'Brien, D-Andover.

According to Senator O'Brien, Andover is "at or close to" mandated maintenance-of-effort spending for the coming year.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski agrees that the new law has the potential to generate an us-versus-them kind of thinking.

"I don't think it exists here to the extent it may in other places," he said. "We are determined not to have it here."

He said his office is waiting for more information from the state departments of revenue and education, but if the mandates change how state aid is divided between communities' town and school budgets, Andover may have to look at how local taxes are allocated to those two budgets. Currently, Andover schools receive 60 percent of tax revenues and town departments, including police, fire, municipal maintenance, water and public works, share the remaining 40 percent.

The law now allows communities to raise funds for education at the local level, too. Communities can now add a space on excise-tax bills for people to make a donation to local education support foundations, such as the private group in Andover called The Fund for Education.

Early retirement

Teachers in the state who have more than 20 years of service can apply for one of the 2,500 early retirement slots this year. The number is scheduled to remain the same in the following seven years.

Eligible teachers can add either five years to their service total or five years to their age. They can allocate the increase to either, so long as the total does not exceed five years. The community from which the teacher retires will split with the state the cost of the benefits added by the increased five years. The first deadline for teachers to apply expired last month. But, another will open from Jan. 1 to June 10, 1994.

Gerald Silverman, principal of Georgetown High School and a selectman here, believes early retirement is a key element of the reform law.

"Growth in the schools occurred with the baby boom generation. Many more schools were built and teachers hired. Those teachers are still there and making in the $40,000 range. That's what's keeping the costs up," he said.

Teachers to lose tenure

Teachers who have more than three years of teaching experience will no longer be granted tenure. Instead, they will be considered "teachers of professional status."

Mr. Meyers says tenure and teachers of professional status are the same idea - the new classification provides protection for teachers against arbitrary dismissal.

Tenure "has been a red herring. The public saw it as a job for life," Mr. Meyers said.

Teacher of professional status "provides basically the same protection as tenure did against politically motivated and capricious dismissal," he said.

School superintendents are responsible for hiring and firing teachers. If a teacher is fired, he or she has the right to have the case reviewed by an independent arbitrator. The commissioner of education submits the names of three arbitrators. The teacher and superintendent each have the right to eliminate one of the three and the remaining one arbitrates the case.

Once teachers' contracts expire, they will have to negotiate new ones in a slightly different manner. The new law mandates that a community's chief municipal officer be a member of the negotiating team for the town. In Andover the town manager will represent the town and have one vote. The Andover teachers' contract expires in August 1994.

"I can see the good side and bad side of it," said Mr. Stapczynski.

"The town side pays for the (teachers') health and life insurance and it would be good for a town person to be on the board to represent those interests," he said.

The new law also requires teachers to renew their certification every five years to remain on professional status. Just how that process will be implemented has yet to be decided. Mary Lyman, a member of the School Committee who recently attended a workshop on Education Reform, said she is in favor of this provision. She believes the five-year cycle will be staggered, so not every teacher in the system will be taking courses at the same time.

Although communities are mandated to spend certain amounts on staff development and textbooks and equipment, Mr. Meyers said he would like to see education reform go further and fund more grants and other such opportunities for teachers.

The new law also provides funding for eligible high school students to attend state colleges and universities for free.

Community involvement

Building on, but going beyond parent-teacher organizations, the new law mandates that each school in a district must form an advisory council. Members from the parent and non-parent community will be appointed by the school principal, who will serve as co-chairperson. The councils will serve in an advisory capacity to assist the principal in setting goals for the school, assess curriculum strengths and weaknesses, teacher and student achievement and the successes and failures of policy.

Andover has always had opportunities for parents to become involved in schools, but this new mandate requires that principals appoint members from the parent and non-parent communities and that they play active roles in and out of the schools.

"We have always had a lot of parent involvement, which I think is a credit to the school system," said Richard Muller, a school committee member.

He believes the new mandated committees will foster even more community involvement in town.

School committees have lost the authority to set curriculum standards. That job is now the responsibility of the state Department of Education, which will establish statewide standards and administer tests at various grade levels as well as a high-school competency test to graduate.

Advisory councils will help principals assess how each school is meeting state standards. The principal will report the council's findings to the superintendent, who has final authority on making changes.

School and town officials are still waiting to hear from the state departments of education and revenue regarding many of the specifics of the Education Reform law, but the majority of people with whom the Townsmen spoke believe that increased state aid is a step toward improving public education across the state.

"It is not money alone that makes a good school system, but it helps, and this is a start," said Senator O'Brien.

J. Welty plays with drum corps

Jennifer Welty, formerly of Andover, is competing this summer in the Star of Indiana Drum and Bugle Corps. The Corps is based in Bloomington, Ind. Ms. Welty, 20, plays bells and xylophones in the front ensemble.

The Star of Indiana Drum and Bugle Corps recently won the Midwest regional competition and is heading off to compete in more regional competitions. Ms. Welty said the Corps' final goal is the International Championship.

"The Corps won the championship two years ago," she said. "It's like an Olympics."

Last year the Corps placed third. The Corps' musical selections include Medea by Samuel Barber and Music for Strings, Percussion and Celeste by Bela Bartok.

Ms. Welty is a voice major at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. She said she would like to teach in the future.

"I would like to teach Drum Corps kids," she said. "It helps you gain experience."

Ms. Welty said a music instructor introduced her to the program two years ago.

Although members of the Corps perform every night, travel 1,400 miles during the summer, do not get paid and sleep on the gym floors of schools, Ms. Welty said it is all worthwhile.

"It's an amazing experience," she said. "The people are very nice and the program is very well organized."

an apartment dwelling on Argyle Street in Shawsheen. He was raised in the two-family house at 65 Park St., behind what is now Park Street Village, which was then a boarding house. He graduated from Punchard High, class of 1949, and once had a classroom where his former office is today.

He was drafted in the 1950s, during the Korean War, but spent his service in Kentucky. After his discharge, he married his wife, Ellen, and worked for the Andover Co-op on Main Street where the CVS/Pharmacy is now. Then he worked for the Stevens Co., the old Marland Mills, and managed that office in Dracut for 14 years before working for the town.

Mr. DeSalvo, of 10 Middle St. and Ogunquit, Maine, was born and grew up in Shawsheen Heights and graduated Punchard High class of '53. He and his wife, Elaine, lived in what was his parents' house.

John Avery, of 36 Morton St., grew up in the same house in which he and his wife, Judith, live now. He graduated Phillips Academy 1944. Rogers Brook was once open through The Park and he and his wife remember that every year on prom night somebody would fall into it. The brook was covered over in 1964-'65 because every spring it would flood and fill the basements all along Chestnut Street.

"It was never a nice babbling brook," Mr. Avery said.

Seems like yesterday

Mr. Muise was hired in August 1966 and worked 26 years and 11 months for the town.

"I was hired as a tax collector," he said while helping in his former office last week.

Mr. Muise will continue to work part time until a new treasurer/collector is hired.

The job then was strictly collecting taxes - real estate, motor vehicle and personal property taxes. Now it includes "collection of everything, regardless of where it is processed," according to Mr. Muise.

Richard Bowen, former town manager, appointed Mr. Muise town collector when the Board of Selectmen included Bill Stewart, Roger Collins, Phil Allen and Bob Waters. He also worked for town managers J. Maynard Austin, who in 1971 made him treasurer; Jared Clark; Ken Mahony; and Buzz Stapczynski, current manager. He was the first assistant collector.

When he started, town offices were still in Old Town Hall on Main Street, and his office was where the post office is now.

"It seems like yesterday but at the same time it's almost 28 years ago," Mr. Muise said.

Mr. DeSalvo was hired as assistant building inspector on June 25, 1972, by Mr. Austin and worked under Arthur Peatman, former building inspector. He was promoted to building inspector

Sam DeSalvo, building inspector: "The junk-car regulation was more of a headache than anything else. The building inspector has better things to do than look for junk cars. Although I think it's a good bylaw. It keeps the town clean."

Myron "Mike" Muise, treasurer and collector: In his 26 years as collector, only once did the town foreclose on a property for failure to pay taxes, and two months later the owner came in and paid the town everything plus two months rent.

John Avery, engineer: "We're in good shape as far as water is concerned," although there is still no town water on the extreme western edge of town or in the Jenkins Road area. "I think the town is very well run and they've done a good job looking into the future."

by Jared Clark and worked 20 years for the town.

Mr. Avery worked 29 and a half years for the town. He was hired as town engineer by Tom Duff, then town manager, on Dec. 10, 1963.

"I had worked in construction before that," Mr. Avery said.

He worked as a construction engineer on roads and bridges, including Route 128.

He also worked out of "one little room" in Old Town Hall. His job included approval of sites and utilities for construction, but mostly focused on drainage.

"I put plenty of drainage pipes in the ground. In the '70s, we did 10 miles of surface water drainage," Mr. Avery said.

When he first started here, Haggetts Pond was the town's sole water source. The Fish Brook pumping station and transmission main were built in the '70s. At that point the town started using Fish Brook water to top off Haggetts Pond every spring.

"Ten years ago or so we started using the Merrimack River water," Mr. Avery said.

Big changes

The best way to show how the town has changed during Mr. Muise's tenure is to look at the ledger for the annual town tax collection, he said. In 1966, the year he was appointed collector, the town's tax collection totaled $4.3 million. Last year it was $52.3 million.

"Forty-eight million dollars in 26 and a half years," he said.

"In all the years I've been here, other than in a revaluation year, the tax rate never went down," Mr. Muise said. Even in revaluation years, while the rate may have dropped, "the tax dollars never did."

The change from annual to semi-annual billing in 1974, then to quarterly tax billing in 1990, decreased the town's need for borrowing, according to Mr. Muise.

The largest bond issue he saw was $10 million for construction of the Collins Center, which the town borrowed at almost 10 percent interest. Bonds were issued last month at 4.1 percent.

The town's "AA" rating by Moody's Investors Service has helped keep the bond interest low and the sales brisk, he said. One factor that he thinks helps sell the town's municipal bonds is Phillips Academy graduates who are now stockbrokers. They know the town, have fond memories of their time here, and push the bonds, he said.

"I feel that has helped us over the years," Mr. Muise said.

Mr. DeSalvo started when big changes were happening with building codes.

"In 1972, the Massachusetts state building code went into effect," he said. "It required a lot more work."

It required the town to inspect every apartment building with three or more units, and any place of public assembly or industry. At the same time, a lot of new construction was going on.

"We had industry coming out our ears," Mr. DeSalvo said.

Development

The development in West Andover, which was all farm land, had a great impact on the town, Mr. Muise said. Shattuck Farm was where the Taje Inn is now.

"Everybody drove out there for ice cream cones," Mr. Muise said.

"When I came we had just put the sewer up to West Andover, which took in Raytheon and all that development up there," Mr. Muise said.

The work was funded through a 20-year assessment and Mr. Muise said he remembers saying at the time, "I wonder where I'll be in 20 years." That assessment has been paid off for six years.

That was the biggest assessment during his tenure. The second biggest was the one that paid for the sewer that went out River Road to Hewlett-Packard Co.

In the early '70s, Cressy Dockham Co. built a large building on Ballardvale Street and Raytheon Co. built the Microelectronics Center at 358 Lowell St., as well as a huge addition to the missile plant at 350 Lowell St., according to Mr. DeSalvo. That addition included the largest non-stop concrete pour Mr. DeSalvo saw in his time here.

"It was a monolithic pour. They poured for three days, continuous pouring of concrete, 24 hours a day, around the clock," he said. "That was my first monolithic pour."

Mr. DeSalvo named three buildings he's proud of having worked on.

"Brickstone (Properties, on York Street) is probably the top of my list. Of course this building right here (the club house at Andover Country Club). And the (Microelectronics) building that Raytheon built out in the back was the building I was most concerned with.

"When Shetland Properties owned the (Brickstone) property we had nothing but problems. More problems than Carter had liver pills," Mr. DeSalvo said.

But since Marty Spaggatt took it over, in the early 1980s, "it has been great," he said. "They did a fantastic job down there."

3 made a difference here during 3 decades

Other buildings on the top of his list included several at PA, including the Cage athletic building, another monolithic pour. But one building he would like to see at least partially torn down is Draper Hall.

"In my opinion, parts of it should be torn down. I've been after that some time. If that building started to burn it would take buildings around it," Mr. DeSalvo said.

"The thing I regret probably, which I could see but couldn't control, were the condominium complexes," he said, and he named Brookside Estates and Abbot Pond complexes.

"The density, I think, is too heavy specifically for the area they're in."

He wishes the state had given the town more time to relocate those complexes to areas where they'd have been more acceptable, and more accessible for fire and police protection.

Other construction he oversaw, in addition to countless residential homes, include an addition to what was then the Sheraton Rolling Green hotel on Lowell Street, now the Ramada, the Marriott, Andover Companies and Mast Industries, all on Old River Road; the Marriott Courtyard on Campanelli Drive; and the New England Telephone building on Shattuck Road.

"Every building up there was built while I was building inspector. Even Doyle Lumber Co. moved while I was building inspector."

Mr. Avery said the roads suffered while development was booming.

"There wasn't enough spent on the roads for a while," he said.

But he said that, "generally speaking, I think we did a pretty good job."

A drop in asphalt prices last year allowed the town to do a lot of resurfacing for a little money, he said. Where the prices had been $29 a ton for asphalt, a pricing war caused a drop to $17.63 per ton last year.

Mr. Avery remembered one tricky job — the replacement of the glass floors in Memorial Hall Library.

"They needed to be replaced with plywood and strip lighting," he said.

But the job had to be done while all the books were left in place.

"That was a bit of a challenge," Mr. Avery said.

Mr. Avery remembers several engineering challenges he conquered, but said few remain. "Unfortunately, they tore down everything I built," he said.

There was a town building on one corner of Ballardvale Green that housed the Ballardvale extension of the library, a function hall and the Beverage Barn, which sold cases of soda.

"We fixed it all up and not too long after that they tore the whole thing down," Mr. Avery said.

Looking ahead

Mr. Muise averaged a collection rate of 98 percent while being lauded for working with people to find payment plans with which they could live. He said he never had to threaten anyone and was never threatened himself.

"You can't get blood out of a stone. You've got to work with the taxpayers," Mr. Muise said.

In his 26 years as collector, only once did the town foreclose on a property for failure to pay taxes, and two months later the owner came in and paid the town everything plus two months rent.

"That wasn't bad for that many years," Mr. Muise said.

Taxes are on the parcel and go on forever. Whoever owns the parcel is the one who has to pay them, Mr. Muise said.

"Death and taxes. They're a fact of life. You either (die) or pay, and if you (die) somebody else still had to pay them," he said.

Mr. Muise said he hasn't seen any evidence the economy has improved in the last year or two.

"I haven't seen any major changes in the economy in my job," Mr. Muise said. "There are still as many people out of jobs and having trouble paying taxes. And I hope my replacement understands that. We don't need Simon Legree in here right now."

Yards sale, junk-car and cottage-industry regulations are really nuisances to the building inspector, Mr. DeSalvo said.

But that doesn't mean the current bylaws aren't worthwhile, he said.

"The junk-car regulation was more of a headache than anything else," he said. "The building inspector has better things to do than look for junk cars. Although I think it's a good bylaw. It keeps the town clean."

His decision to allow Trumpeters Restaurant to operate as a public facility at Andover Country Club was correct, he still believes, despite the fact that decision was reversed by the Zoning Board of Appeals and the courts.

Mr. DeSalvo said he leaves feeling he did a good job for the town.

"I don't think there are any unsafe buildings in town. Let's put it this way: They are safer now than they've ever been. When the building officials and the fire department worked together they got results," Mr. DeSalvo said.

Mr. DeSalvo worked well with Bill Downs, former fire chief and now selectman, and Harold Hayes, current chief. He also worked well with Mr. Avery, he said.

"John Avery would come to every meeting I asked him to and he supported me," Mr. DeSalvo said.

Mr. DeSalvo admitted that he had some failures and that there were some fights he shouldn't have gotten into.

"I don't think there's a contractor or brick mason who didn't feel some sort of sting, but we felt it also. It's not an easy job," Mr. DeSalvo said.

Earth and gravel removal were always a problem with developers, according to Mr. Avery, but in general, "I think the developers have worked pretty well with the town," he said.

Mr. DeSalvo said that another grade crossing over the railroad tracks into Dundee Park will help that property be developed into a "fantastic area." The same would be true of the mill buildings off Stevens Street if another access road could be found there.

"Unfortunately, to rehab a mill building and bring it to code today is a lot of money," Mr. DeSalvo said.

Mr. Avery favors cluster zoning. It saves on utilities and paving, and conserves open space and wetlands, he said.

Extending the town sewer system is still an issue, and one that the town will have to contend with on an as-needed basis, according to Mr. Avery. There is no town sewer south of Phillips Academy or in parts of West Andover.

"We're in good shape as far as water is concerned," Mr. Avery said, although there is still no town water on the extreme western edge of town or in the Jenkins Road area.

"I think the town of Andover is very well run and they've done a good job looking into the future," Mr. Avery said.

Retirement plans

Now that he is retired, Mr. Muise and his wife will spend more time in West Palm Beach in the winter and babysitting their 18-month-old granddaughter, Kelly Leyden of North Andover.

Mr. DeSalvo began his retirement with a golf lesson the first day at Andover Country Club. He wanted to play the course for 20 years but didn't because of a possible conflict of interest with Yvon Cormier, the club's owner.

"For 20 years I didn't screw around in town," Mr. DeSalvo said over coffee last week, in the members' downstairs dining room at the club. He is not a member but was there for a lesson.

It's a party

Colleagues of John Avery, town engineer, and Sam DeSalvo, building inspector, are planning a retirement party for the two on Friday, Aug. 20, at Andover Country Club. The public is invited and interested persons should contact Bruce Hale at town offices, or Chris Cronin and Brian Moore at the water treatment plant.

His favorite places to eat in town while on the job were Santana's Restaurant, 516 S. Main St., and Shawshen Luncheonette in Shawshen Square. He just had to vary the times he ate so the builders wouldn't be able to find him during lunch, he said. Mr. DeSalvo also admitted he never liked speaking to the press, and that he intentionally didn't return phone calls until after he knew the Townsmen's deadline was past.

He liked his job.

"The best move I ever made pertaining to work was working in Andover. I think I accomplished more in life working for the town of Andover than I did in anything else," Mr. DeSalvo said.

He was president of Massachusetts State Building Commissioners and Inspectors Association, New England States Code association, and was involved with several other building associations. And the town encouraged his involvement in those associations.

"I've had more support from the Board of Selectmen than any other building inspector had in Andover," Mr. DeSalvo said. "I've never had any political pressure placed on me since I've been a building official, which made my job easier. And that's the truth."

Mr. DeSalvo spends much of his time in Ogunquit, Maine, where he and his wife own an inn and a gift shop. He said Mrs. DeSalvo has always run the inn. "But now that I'm retired, I'm sure I'll be of some assistance to her," he said.

Mr. Avery will spend more time working in the garden in his yard, now that he's retired. He and his wife also plan to travel and will take a cruise in the fall.

And he will spend less time answering calls at his home from residents wanting to know why their water is brown or wondering when their street repairs will be completed, although his wife was always wonderful at fending off those calls anyway, he said.

Involved parents

In Andover, scores and scores of parents are involved in their children's school programs. They volunteer in the school libraries, they share their talents and cultures with the students and they volunteer to organize major events, such as career day at Andover High School.

Studies show that students whose parents are involved in their schools are the ones who achieve. If school is important to mom and dad, the child learns that achieving in school is a good thing. If the student's parents know first hand about some of what goes on during Billy's day at school, and they talk about it at the dinner table, school and what happens there registers in Billy's mind as a priority in the minds of the two most important people in his life.

The Education Reform Bill provides ways for parents to become more involved with schools. Actually, it mandates that each school in a district must form an advisory council. Members from the parent and non-parent community will be appointed by the school principal, who will serve as co-chairperson.

The councils will serve in an advisory capacity to assist the principal in setting goals for the school, to assess curriculum strengths and weaknesses, to assess teacher and student achievement and the successes and failures of policy.

Andover schools have a tradition of involved parents, but the new law may mean even more parents, and other community members, will become involved with the workings of the schools. That is one excellent part of the new law and we welcome it.

An alternative to putting a child on Ritalin

By Perry Colmore

I read that the number of school children on Ritalin, a drug prescribed to curb restlessness and inattention, has more than doubled in Massachusetts in the last four years.

The actual number of children in this state on Ritalin is 4,836, according to one account. That is 1 percent of the school children, according to the state Department of Public Health.

The increasing number of kids on the drug has health-care officials and school personnel looking and wondering if too many students are placed on Ritalin.

When I was a first-grade teacher for five years a number of years ago, I had a couple of kids who were on it. I watched one child change from a squirming, fidgeting, anxious, unable-to-learn boy to a child who was happy because he could control his behavior much better and therefore, learn.

Another child, also a boy, whom I taught and who was placed on Ritalin while in my classroom, became more hyperactive after he was put on the drug. Already he was a child bouncing off the walls; the Ritalin made him bounce twice as high. It was a difficult situation.

It is always difficult to diagnose children with attention deficit disorder, ADD it's called today. How can we tell if the child is hyper and upset because he saw some inappropriate show on television and now has nightmares, or if he may be, for instance, allergic to chocolate?

One of the many students I taught was allergic to certain foods. No one knew that when he entered first grade. But he had a lot of the same behavioral characteristics as an ADD child.

That boy's family learned about his problem after consulting with many health and learning experts. He was placed on the Feingold Diet. Maybe you've heard about it: You take away all sugar, artificial food coloring, as much processed food as possible, tomato in any form (no pizza, for instance!) and a few other things. Of course that child felt like a freak half the time because he couldn't eat birthday cake, or chocolate milk, spaghetti, or cookies, or.... Well, you get it.

Attention deficit disorder and food allergies are serious problems. When a child can't learn, or when he or she can't hold still long enough to write her own name or read his own name, it's a problem. That child's self esteem suffers, a family is dealing with turmoil, and often that child disrupts his entire classroom.

This may be over-simplifying the problem, and someone could be offended by this suggestion... However, if I had a child who couldn't learn today, or who was very restless, I would cut way, way back on television watching. (I'd do that for any child, healthy or not.) I also would cut way back on unhealthy eating: especially sweets and processed foods.

Any child will benefit from less TV and a better diet. The time that the child gains by turning off the TV can be spent outdoors, exercising. Sure, he will be angry at first. But hang in there, because this will help. And it may mean a child won't have to be on medication.

That would be an added benefit, too.

LETTERS

Resident: 'I want to explain why we need town water'

Editor, Townsmen:

It has been a terrible week for this neighborhood. Months away from town meeting, I want to explain why we need town water.

There was an underground fire in our woods which, while contained, is still smoldering. One of the officers told us that in one day they pumped 80,000 gallons into it. I saw those poor firemen at day's end. They looked absolutely exhausted and no wonder. They had to load pumpers from the nearest hydrant (probably three-quarters of a mile away). This is scary.

Our neighbors and we lost our pump prime twice because of low wells. If we hadn't been awake, the pumps would have burned out at astronomical replacement costs plus the danger of house fires.

Do the 98 percent of people in town who have water realize that it is a necessity of life and should take precedence over schools, a senior center, a youth center, sidewalks, sewerage, libraries, street lights?

As one gets older and loses some physical capacities, it's very hard to tote water on foot over a mile. We can buy enough for drinking and cooking but we have to restrict showers, flushing and laundry. Forget vegetable gardens, flowers, lawns.

Three of the selectmen agreed that this is a bad situation and supported water to this area. Most others in decision-making positions have a "let them eat cake" mentality. It makes the town appear really bush league.

The argument of the town officials that we knew the situation when we moved here could hold some water (pun intended) but 36 years ago when that happened, we had lived in an affluent suburb, an inner city, a "blue collar city" and a rural town (population 1,000). They all had town water so it wasn't a thing we thought to ask.

Several months ago a water main broke in the vicinity of Elm Street. The town worked on it as an emergency situation and restored it as soon as possible. This is as it should be. We applaud. They didn't tell those residents to go dig a hole in the ground,

When our house was built over 300 years ago, there was probably no town water even on Main Street, but we've been patient. It must be our turn by now.

Please picture yourself without water and vote to extend this necessity to your fellow residents at next town meeting. We're hurting. I'd meet with anyone about this issue but probably not right now. I don't smell so good.

COOKING

Growing herbs and cooking with them

By Maria Moskos

I can't think of a good reason why anyone should be without an herb garden (unless, of course, you dislike herbs). If you live in a condo, you can place herbs in pots on your balcony, and if you're a nursing-home resident, you can place a variety of small herbal plants on your windowsill and snip fresh mint for ice tea and fresh chives and basil for garnish for garden salads and soups. Some herbs, such as flat-leaf parsley, which is rich in vitamin c, have nutritional value.

When arranging flowers, I often add fresh cuttings of various varieties of mint to add a wonderful scent to the bouquet. Masses of chive flowers make an attractive bouquet, especially for a brunch table. You can color coordinate table accessories utilizing the lavender color and add to the theme by using fresh chives in the scrambled eggs, quiche or omelets and chive flower heads to garnish the salad.

I frequently dig up different herbs from my garden and arrange them in an interesting container, such as a "strawberry pot" or twig basket, attach bows made from long strands of chives and present them as hostess or housewarming gifts. The recipients have always been enthusiastic about receiving a unique gift that keeps giving and one that I have shared from my garden's bounty.

Children also derive pleasure from having an herb garden because herbs are easy and inexpensive to grow, usually produce very successful results, require low maintenance and can be used year round. Plants can be taken indoors in the fall and herbs can also be dried, preserved or frozen. Growing herbs is very addicting and besides culinary herbs, there are medicinal herbs, such as horehound for use in cough drops and aloe for burns; fragrant herbs such as lavender for scenting bath water and catnip to attract cats; ornamental herbs, such as lady's mantle, which adds much interest to an herb garden; herbs grown for dried arrangements, such as teasel, yarrow, tansy and wormwood; and herbs used to dye fabrics, such as safflower and woad.

You can use different herbs in combinations, for example, moth-chasing herb, such as wormwood, gray santolia and tansy in making closet bags and herb pillows with lemon verbena and peppermint to scent guestroom bed linens. Herb vinegars and oils can be made and bottled in fancy containers for holiday gift-giving and different mints can be made into mint jellies (my favorite is grapefruit mint jelly). You can also crystallize mint leaves, place them in air-tight jars and at Christmas-time combine them with fresh cranberries to simulate holly on cakes, cookies and pies.

Growing herbs is so satisfying and offers the opportunity to be creative in so many enjoyable ways. I hope I am never without an herb garden, even if it's on my windowsill.

Egyptian onions, a hardy perennial in the allium family, grow up to 3 feet and are also known as top onions. The tops of the hollow stems develop bulbs as opposed to regular onions, which develop bulbs at the bottom. The bulbs may be used in salads, soups, dips and vinegars and the stalks can be stuffed with soft cheeses and served as an hors d'oeuvre.

Egyptian onion dip (top bulbs)

12 oz. cream cheese, softened
16 oz. sour cream
1 cup mayonnaise
5 tbsp. fresh snipped flat-leaf parsley
9 Egyptian onion bulbs, chopped
3 tsp. fresh dill
3 tsp. celery seed
1/4 cup snipped chives

Blend together the cream cheese and sour cream. Whip in the mayonnaise. Add remaining ingredients and chill. Place in a pottery bowl. Place bowl in a basket with a handle and place onion melba rounds around the bowl. Decorate the basket and handle with Egyptian onions, twisting and turning upwards around the handle on one side of the basket.

Crystallized mint leaves

Separate the leaves from mint sprigs and wipe clean. In a dish, rub two drops of green food coloring with 1/2 cup sugar with fingers.

In a small bowl, beat one egg white until it holds soft peaks. Coat the mint leaves on both sides with the egg white (using a brush) and place on a sheet of wax paper. Sift the colored sugar over both sides of the leaves.

Line a jelly roll pan with a sheet of parchment paper, place the sugared leaves on the paper and put them in a preheated 250-degree oven. Turn the oven off and let leaves stand in the oven for 30 minutes or until they are hard and dry. Stored in an air-tight container, the leaves last several months.

Mint leaves can be used with cranberries at holiday time to simulate holly and to decorate cakes (especially nice with a lemon mousse cake), pies and jellied salads. Peppermint stick ice cream can also be garnished with mint leaves for a colorful coordinating touch.

Opal basil vinegar

(can substitute sweet basil)
2 cups opal basil leaves
5 cups white wine vinegar
3 peppercorns

Wash and dry the leaves and pack loosely in a wide-mouthed glass jar. Pour in vinegar and add peppercorns. Cover the jar tightly and shake or stir the contents every other day for 10 days or until flavored enough to suit your taste.

Strain this lovely deep pink vinegar into bottles through a funnel. Push in a sprig of fresh basil for a decoration and cork or cap tightly. I have my own personal herbal stamp from which I make color-coordinated herbal labels personalized with my name, the name of the vinegar and the date. Vinegars make attractive culinary gifts.

Andover cardiologist talks about Celtics Captain Reggie Lewis' death

By Don Staruk

Dr. Davor Kvaternik, an Andover cardiologist, took time Wednesday morning to talk about the sudden death of Reggie Lewis, Boston Celtics team captain, who collapsed and died Tuesday night while shooting baskets at Brandeis University in Waltham.

Mr. Lewis, 27, collapsed during a Celtics game in April and was told he had a heart condition and that he should retire from basketball. He sought a second opinion and was told he had a neurological problem that was treatable with medication, and that he could resume playing basketball. He had not resumed training and was not running or doing any other strenuous exercise when he suffered a massive heart attack Tuesday, according to witnesses.

Dr. Kvaternik, of 14 Stafford Lane and with offices in Salem, N.H., explained the "tilt-table test," a test that reports said Mr. Lewis failed following his collapse in April, and what probably happened to Mr. Lewis Tuesday night.

The tilt-table test is used when a patient has passed out and no other explanation can be found for the collapse, according to Dr. Kvaternik. The patient is strapped to a flat table in a prone position. His or her blood pressure and heart rate are checked, then part of the table is progressively raised until the patient is in a sitting position. In a healthy person, the blood pressure will drop initially as the body is raised, but then the heart will kick in to adjust the pressure back up.

"In people who fail this test, your blood pressure and heart rate drop," and the body does not adjust and you pass out, Dr. Kvaternik said.

That's what happened to Mr. Lewis in tests following his collapse in April.

One diagnosis was cardioneurogenic syncope. When a healthy person stands up quickly, the body sends signals to the brain, which sends signals to the heart to trigger adjustment of their blood pressure. In a person with cardioneurogenic syncope, the nerves don't get the message across and the adjustment isn't made.

The conflict in Mr. Lewis' case was that one doctor made this diagnosis, which is treatable with medications, according to Dr. Kvaternik, but the original diagnosis was cardiomyopathy, in which cardiac arrhythmia causes fibrillations in the heart, which can lead to sudden death.

"And that's what happened to him," Dr. Kvaternik said.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

NERVOUS STOMACHS

Anyone who "lives on antacids" to cope with stomach troubles may want to consider a non-medical approach to the problem. The stomach is a sophisticated digestive pouch containing powerful acids with a valve at either of its ends. Its inner lining is coated with a thick layer of mucus to protect the stomach walls from acids enclosed within. To function properly, shedding mucous cells must be replaced, digestive juices and enzymes must be secreted, and the stomach valves must work properly. As numerous studies have indicated, nerves traveling from the brain down the spine to the stomach help control digestive processes. If these nerves are constricted by spinal misalignment, stomach problems may result. Chiropractic treats the causes of such distress, rather than just the symptoms.

There are many symptoms that can originate from the misalignment of the spine. We offer you natural and safe treatment for a variety of health problems. If you would like more information, please call DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042. We accept only those patients we sincerely feel we can help. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. In the November 15, 1958 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, 88 percent of 100 ulcer patients had spinal abnormalities in the area of stomach-secreting nerves.

Andover residents, from left, Chris Addesa (Phillips Exeter Academy), Ryan Moynihan (Cushing Academy) and Brian Addesa (Phillips Exeter) will be among close to 400 of the nation's top high school hockey players from 24 states participating in the 19th annual Hockey Night in Boston Summer Showcase of Stars from July 31-Aug. 29 at Merrimack College's S. Peter Volpe Complex. All three will play for the North Shore team, whose first game in the round robin portion of the tournament is this Sunday at 8:15 p.m. against South Shore. The 5-8, 145-pound Moynihan, a 17-year-old junior forward at Cushing, had two goals and six assists last year. Brian Addesa, a 17-year-old 6-3, 192-pound junior defenseman at Exeter, scored 17 goals and 19 assists for 36 points last winter. Chris Addesa, an 18-year-old 6-foot, 160-pound goaltender at Exeter, played 11 games last year and finished with a 1.70 goals-against average and one shutout. The Addesa brothers' father, Mike, is a former college head coach at Holy Cross and RPI, while Moynihan's older brother, Dan, recently played hockey in Europe and England. Admission to all HNTB Tournament pre-playoff games is free. Last year's tournament featured 32 players who were NHL draft picks last month (June 26) in Quebec City.

Andover team places second at Hoops for Hope Festival

Andover finished second in a quality field of 20 Varsity Division basketball teams at the first Hoops For Hope Festival last weekend at Sullivan Park in Lawrence.

Andover opened the tourney by romping to a lopsided victory over Chelmsford on Saturday night.

Forced to play three games in a little over four hours on the final day, Andover almost pulled it off as the locals beat Methuen 60-48 in the quarter-final round and the Derry Astros 69-62 in the semi-finals before bowing to Lowell 62-54 in the title game.

Andover broke a halftime tie against fired-up Methuen, as guard Kirk Stockwood finished with 17 points, Eric Danis 13 and Matt Gibson 11 for the winners.

Danis pumped in 22 points and Gibson had 20 as Andover fought back a spirited challenge from the Derry Astros.

The tired Andover crew then took the court against Lowell and played a strong game, trailing 31-28 at halftime before being outpointed by a near-dentical 31-26 margin in the second half.

Matt Gibson tossed in 15 points and guard Tom Tanin added 14 to pace the locals, while John Crowley was game-high with 17 and Alex Pantojas added 15 (five three-pointers) for the tourney champs.

Other teams in the tournament included Shawheen Tech, Central Catholic, Masconomet, St. Mary's, North Reading, Pentucket, Greater Lawrence, Timberlane, North Andover, the Derry Jets, Lawrence, Haverhill, Salem N.H. and Whittier.

During the regular Hoops For Hope Summer League, Andover currently is tied for second place with a 5-2 overall record. Lawrence is 6-1 and Central Catholic is also 5-2.

Andover returns to regular season play tonight at 8:45 p.m., facing Whittier at the Sullivan Park courts.

Their final two games, prior to the playoffs, are the next two Thursday nights against the Derry Jets (Aug. 5) and Greater Lawrence (Aug. 12). Both of those games start at 7:30 p.m.

In the Junior Varsity Division, Andover wraps up next week with games against Lawrence on Monday (7:30 p.m.) and Salem N.H. on Wednesday (6 p.m.).

Methuen Police arrest Andover Blue's winstreak

By Rick Harrison

Andover Blue of the Suburban Pony League is about to put the wraps on another outstanding regular season.

Blue, which has strung together a series of superb campaigns and captured outright or shared the league title four times, was 15-2 overall entering last night's game against Winthrop.

The second game with intra-town rival Andover Gold will be played this Saturday morning at Andover High (10 a.m.), and Blue will then move to the six-team post-season playoffs next week.

Blue had an eight-game win streak snapped Monday night with a rare poor performance, as nemesis team Methuen Police registered a 10-2 victory and in the process vaulted past the locals into first place in the North Division.

Methuen has handed Blue both its losses this season after edging the Andover team in the championship playoffs last year.

Methuen, at 15-1 overall, is one point ahead of Blue with two games left. Methuen faces Medford and wraps up with Lowell, which handed the Police their lone defeat of the season.

Blue's most recent title came in 1991, while last summer the perennial power reached the best-of-3 championship finals before dropping a classic 1-0 decision to Methuen in the third and deciding game.

Blue was 19-3 in each of those seasons and is 53-8 in its last 61 games.

Andover Blue opened the summer by reeling off seven straight victories against the Wilmington Wildcats (7-0), North Reading Braves (12-9), North Andover Knights (5-2), Medford No. 1 (12-1), Lowell (12-3), Medford No. 2 (10-5) and Andover Gold (8-4).

Following a 10-7 loss to Methuen, in which the defending champs hit Blue with a nine-run second inning, consecutive victories were registered over the Reading Astros (7-2), Wilmington (14-6), North Reading (12-2), the Reading Rockets (8-5), North Andover (14-9), Stoneham (9-4), Lynnfield Gold (12-6) and Lowell (11-9).

Coaches Joe Iarrobino, Steve Tisbert and Jim Oppenheim have been dividing the pitching duties in almost every game, including the season opener when big George Secchiaroli and Hugh Quattlebaum combined for a no-hitter and 10 strikeouts against Wilmington.

Secchiaroli pitched the first six innings and struck out eight, while Quattlebaum mopped up in the seventh and fanned two.

Chris Kearn is 4-0 on the mound, Quattlebaum 2-0, Secchiaroli 3-2 and also chipping in are Brian Tisbert (1-0), Andy Tossisi (1-0), Andy Marshall and Ryan Games.

This past week the North Division powerhouse chalked up victories over North Andover, Stoneham, Lynnfield and Lowell, with all four wins registered away from home prior to the Methuen loss at Andover High.

Andover Blue 14

North Andover 9

Blue squandered an early 6-3 lead, trailed 9-8 entering the seventh, and then rallied for six runs to beat the upset-minded Knights at the North Andover Middle School.

Jack Glazebrook opened the pivotal seventh with a single, stole second and third, and scored the tying run on Hugh Quattlebaum's single.

Brian Tisbert walked, George Secchiaroli lashed a go-ahead two-run single, Rob Oppenheim walked, Ted Witman walked to load the bases and Secchiaroli came home on a wild pitch. Walks to Peter Kaltsunas, Andy Marshall, Jason Monarca and a passed ball accounted for the final two runs.

Brian Tisbert, who picked up his first victory of the season in relief, shut North Andover down in the bottom of the seventh to preserve the win.

Tisbert, who followed righthanders Quattlebaum and Chris Kearn to the mound, allowed just one hit and struck out two in his two-inning stint.

Kearn was forced to leave the game with a back injury.

Glazebrook led the attack with three hits, including a solo home run, and three stolen bases. Hugh Quattlebaum also rapped a two-run double, Secchiaroli finished with two hits and four RBI, and Kaltsunas contributed a two-run single.

Andover Blue 9

Stoneham 4

Blue raced to a 6-0 lead in the middle of the third inning, and broke open a close 7-4 game with two insurance runs in the sixth at Stoneham High.

The contest was halted by darkness after six innings.

Righthander George Secchiaroli notched his third pitching victory as he, Andy Marshall and Brian Tisbert combined for a four-hitter and five strikeouts.

Tisbert led the balanced attack with four hits (4-for-4) and two RBI, while Marshall slugged a double and single.

Ted Witman added two hits and one ribbie, Hugh Quattlebaum two singles, Andy Tossisi a two-run single, and Secchiaroli a run-scoring double.

Joe Sciola also slapped a double and Ryan Games an RBI single.

Games was a defensive standout in center field.

Andover Blue 12

Lynnfield 6

Once again Blue jumped out fast, grabbing leads of 7-1 after two innings and 11-2 in the fifth at Lynnfield Middle School.

Blue Dolphins 6 - Yellow Jackets 20

The Blue Dolphins' offense was led by a home run and two triples by Danielle Castignetti. Cara Chiaraluce slammed in a home run and Brianne Keefe, Jessica Taylor and Rachel Hartman provided key hits. Blue Dolphin catcher Becky Maddox had an outstanding put-out at home from Colleen Bateson.

Gaters 25 - Braves 22

The Braves were leading in the first three innings. Jen Aronson and Sarah Lochmann handled hard-hit Gaters' balls limiting the scoring. Lindsey Hagopian, Linda Salema and Allison Wilner played well with terrific hits from Kerry Nugent, Lindsey Hanna, Katie Fallon, Jennifer Boyce and Ashley Dougherty. Alex Hanna did a great job coaching first.

Yellow Jackets 28 - Braves 20

The Braves played well with strong offensive hitting from Jen Aronson, Jen Boyce, Katie Buckley, Cynthia Cohen, Lindsey Hagopian, Sarah Lochmann, Linda Salema and Allison Wilner. The defense was led by a second-inning double play by Lindsey Hanna and Ashley Dougherty. Sarah Ferranti, Kerry Nugent and Laura Mertes played well.

Blue M&M's 29 - Yellow Jackets 17

The Blue M&M's dominated with home runs hit by Courtney Sullivan and Lindsey Pearson knocking in three runs apiece. Christina Baraby connected for a triple and Amanda Camello for a double. Lindsey Pearson had the play of the game catching a hard-hit ball and tagging the runner for the double play. Slobhan Daniels made a great catch at second base. Amanda closed the fourth inning with snatching a fly ball and centerfielder Sarah Rabbini closed the fifth with a great throw to second for the out. Contributing to the Yellow Jacket defense was Christina Smaglio, Megan Fraser and Katherine Casey.

Andover Bank 28 - Cardinals 20

Both teams were evenly matched. Ashley Lawton, Tara Hancock, Catherine Rauseo and Crystal Sanella played solid for the Cardinals. Andover Bank Katie Kramer caught a line drive making a double play and Robin Harold, Jaclyn Harold and Katie Haugh were key to the team's defense.

Reading White 26 - Andover Blue 24

The Andover girls lost in the last inning. In the first inning, Jenny Powers at third tagged the scoring Reading runner. Pitcher Noelle Blank made a great play to Carrie Torrisi at first. Viki Pierce handled the ball for the out to second baseman Megan Roth. Sarah Muller at shortstop made two key plays to Charlotte Muller at first.

Viki Pierce slammed in a home run and a single and Courtney Familetti, Kristi Keller, Kim McKew and Megan Roth all had doubles. Additional singles were hit by Kristi Keller, Lynn Mazza, Kim McKew, Julie Litzenberger and Megan Roth.

Andover Post 8 American Legion is in midst of playoffs

By Rick Harrison

Ace righthander Justin Hesenius was on the mound when the Andover Post 8 American Legion baseball team hosted Arlington Post 39 last Tuesday night in the opening game of a best-of-three Sectional playoff series at Andover High.

The winner of the Sectional series, which continued last night at either Spy Pond Field in Arlington or Tufts University in Medford, will move a step closer to the State Legion Tournament finals beginning Aug. 6 at Fino Field in Milford.

If a third game is necessary between Andover and Arlington it was scheduled for tonight. The site of the third game, under National Legion rules, was determined by a coin flip prior to the first game.

All games are scheduled for nine innings and will start at 4 p.m.

If Andover wins its first series, the second best-of-three set will start either tomorrow or Saturday. The most likely opponent would be Zone 5A champ Reading Post 62, which was favored in its opening series.

Other teams that qualified include Revere, Swampscott, Sudbury Post 191 and wild card team Lowell Post 87.

Last year Andover went undefeated during the regular season (17-0), swept Revere and Natick in a pair of Sectional series, and then lost its first two games in the State finals to Braintree and New Bedford.

This summer Andover won its second straight Zone 8A title, and third in four years, with an 11-4-1 record. Post 8 was a Jekyll-and-Hyde team, however, with a 4-4-1 record in its final nine games after going 7-0 to start the season.

Manager Harry Howell's Arlington crew, which reportedly was a strong offensive team with good speed, won the Zone 5 title with a 14-8 record.

"If Justin is 'on' we all know what he can do," noted Post 8 Manager Joe Iarrobino, "and in regards to Arlington's speed (catcher) Paul Allard has been very good at throwing runners out."

Post 8 well-rested

Andover entered the tournament well-rested, having an eight-day lay-off between the regular season finale against Lawrence Post 15 and the playoff opener.

"I made a lot of phone calls trying the schedule an exhibition game to keep us sharp," said Manager Iarrobino. "But everyone else was backed up with games. I tried Manchester Sweeney and Derry in New Hampshire, but they're still playing regular season games."

"Finally we put together a little scrimmage with the older kids from the (Blue and Gold) Pony League teams, and it was a good workout for everyone."

"We're basically healthy," continued Iarrobino. "Mike Sullivan (center fielder) is still bothered by the hamstring pull that made him miss six games. He's about 95 percent. And (pitcher-outfielder) Todd Murray is still having therapy to his (right) shoulder, but he's about 90 percent and has looked good the past couple times out."

"Justin (Hesenius) was suffering from a little bit of fatigue towards the end of the season, but he's had 12 days off since the Revere game (July 15) and will be plenty rested for the playoffs."

The Post 8 manager planned to come back with Matt Marvin (4-1, 2.80 ERA, 45 strikeouts) last night, with Todd Murray (1-1, 4.50 ERA) ready in long relief.

"If either Justin or Matt gets in early trouble we have Todd for long relief. If we play a third game and Todd hasn't pitched he will start, with Gus (Quattlebaum), Matt (Wolcott) and Jeff (Lembo) ready in relief."

Strong stats

Hesenius was 4-1-1 this season with one shutout and a fine 0.97 earned run average. In 36 innings he yielded just 23 hits and five earned runs while striking out 34 and walking 19.

Top hitters during the regular season were center fielder Mike Sullivan (12-27, .444), third baseman Gus Quattlebaum (15-36, .417), shortstop Todd Harris (17-45, .378), first baseman Toby Guzowski (15-43, .349), second baseman Brian Flanagan (13-42, .310) and catcher Paul Allard (12-39, .308).

Among the reserves the top averages were Rick Mendez (4-7, .571), Jeff Hesenius (3-6, .500), Jeff Lembo (9-21, .429) and Todd Murray (4-10, .400). The team batting average was a crisp .323 for the regular season (140-433).

Justin Hesenius led Post 8 in RBI with 19, while Gus Quattlebaum added 13 and Todd Harris 12.

Harris had the most hits (17), Quattlebaum the most doubles (6) and triples (3), and home runs were belted by Justin Hesenius, Bob Daley, Paul Allard, Quattlebaum, Jeff Lembo, Todd Murray and Rick Mendez.

Quattlebaum's slugging percentage was a hefty .778 as he piled up 28 total bases in 36 at-bats.

WHY KARATE FOR KIDS?

Self-confidence — does not come naturally for many children, but rather it is developed over a period of time. As a child accomplishes new goals, his confidence level increases. Children become more self confident in karate because they progress individually at their own pace and are not judged against others.

Self defense — Childrens self defense takes many forms. Many parents worry about their children being safe on the street yet one of the real problems concerns a child's ability to defend himself against other kids. Karate teaches children to think instead of panic in potentially serious situations as well as how to react to threats from other kids.

Every Child Wins — In karate every kid can be a winner instead of a bench sitter because karate allows children to reach for their own potential rather than directly compete against other kids.

Coordination — Karate challenges the entire body developing coordination, balance, agility and poise often neglected in many team sports available to children in this age group.

Fun Karate lessons are a dynamic and challenging approach to the martial arts for children who are athletic, energetic, awkward or shy, bold, nice or maybe even a little wild once in a while... karate is probably for a kid just like yours.

Our pledge We are dedicated to giving a child the most professional, well supervised and highest quality classes available in any sport anywhere!

Classes are taught at the N. Andover Knights Of Columbus, 505 Sutton St. No Andover Ma

Methuen Police arrest Blue

Winning pitcher Andy Torrisi, Ryan Games and Brian Tisbert pooled talents for a four-hitter and four strikeouts.

A four-run second inning put the Blue in charge, as they unloaded the heavy artillery with a Jack Glazebrook triple, Hugh Quattlebaum RBI single, Brian Tisbert RBI double, George Secchiaroli RBI triple and Ted Witman RBI single. Peter Kaltsunas also singled before Lynnfield was able to quell the rally.

Secchiaroli finished with two hits and three RBI, Andy Marshall lashed two hits, Ryan Games had a two-run single.

Quattlebaum and Tisbert delivered two hits and stole three bases each.

Defensive standouts were right fielder Ryan Daniels and catcher Ted Witman.

Andover Blue 11

Lowell 9

This was an important game in terms of playoff positioning, as Lowell (13-3) could have tied Andover Blue in the North standings with a victory.

Blue typically started fast, moving to a 7-0 lead in the fourth at Shedd Park in Lowell and maintaining a 9-4 advantage after five innings.

Lowell rallied for two runs in the sixth, however, and came back with three in the bottom of the seventh after Blue had notched the eventual winning runs in the top of the stanza.

The game ended with a groundout to Brian Tisbert at short, Lowell having one runner aboard and the tying run at the plate.

Hugh Quattlebaum, who started and finished the game (4.2 innings), chalked up the pitching victory with middle relief help from Tisbert.

Blue had no trouble solving previously-undefeated Lowell ace Dan MacLaughlan (3-1), pounding out 12 hits.

Andy Torrisi put together a career game with three hits, including a pair of long two-run homers to right field, and he also played a strong defensive game in right.

His second homer, which followed a Peter Kaltsunas single, came in the top of the seventh and provided the winning margin.

Torrisi belted his first home run of the season in the fifth with Andy Marshall, who reached on a fielder's choice, scoring ahead of him.

George Secchiaroli contributed two hits and three RBI, Brian Tisbert hammered a triple and single, Peter Kaltsunas had two singles and one RBI, Hugh Quattlebaum two singles and Ted Witman a long double.

Defensive standouts, in addition to Torrisi, were Ryan Games in center, Ted Witman behind the plate and Brian Tisbert at shortstop.

Methuen 10

Andover Blue 2

Methuen High varsity pitcher Mark Ruggiero went the distance for the Police, scattering five hits and striking out six.

His teammates built an 8-0 lead in the top of the fourth, aided by numerous Blue errors, and Methuen added its final two runs in the seventh.

Blue scored its two runs in the fourth when Brian Tisbert singled, stole second, and scored as George Secchiaroli's grounder produced a two-base throwing error. Ted Witman followed with an RBI double.

Tisbert finished the game with two hits, while Jack Glazebrook and Andy Torrisi contributed one safety each.

The majority of Methuen's runs were unearned, but they also rapped 12 hits against Blue hurlers Secchiaroli and Tisbert.

Amidst all the fielding problems, shortstop Hugh Quattlebaum and second baseman Rob Oppenheim were defensive standouts.

Third annual Henry Wyatt Golf Classic scheduled for Aug. 6

By Don Staruk

The third annual Henry Wyatt Golf Classic is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 6, at the Rolling Green Par Three golf course on Lowell Street. The shotgun start for the approximately 70 golfers is 4:45 p.m.

The golf tourney is a fund raiser organized by town employees for former town employee Henry Wyatt.

Mr. Wyatt, 54, was employed by the town for 23 years. He started with the town in 1966 doing mail and custodial work in Memorial Hall Library. In 1984 he became a clerk in town offices. He then developed a spinal problem which caused him to lose his balance and he was finally forced to retire in 1989. He now lives at Haverhill Manor Nursing Home in Haverhill.

Mr. Wyatt is bed ridden and the proceeds this year will go toward a mobile bed and some of his other living expenses, according to Bruce Hale, plumbing, gas and sewer inspector for the town. Mr. Wyatt has no living family, so, after finding him in need two years ago, Mr. Hale and several other town employees took it upon themselves to raise the money to make Mr. Wyatt's life a bit easier.

Anyone is welcome to take part in the golf tourney. The cost is $20 per person. Contact Mr. Hale, Barbara Morache or Peg Campbell at town offices for more information.

The golf tourney is sponsored by Steve Duffy, proprietor of the Rolling Green Par Three and the Rolling Green Host Hotel.

Yanks edge Braves for crown

By Rick Harrison

The Andover American Little League Yankees won the Major 11- to 12-year-old Town Championship earlier this month, edging the National League Braves 2-1 in their best-of-three series at the Chandler Road field.

The Yankees, who won both halves of the AL season and finished 13-3 during the regular campaign and 15-4 overall, lost the first game to the Braves 7-2 before rallying for a 4-2 win to tie the series and a 7-3 victory to clinch it.

The Yankees' triumph continued the recent domination of the Town Championship series by the American League.

First Game
Braves 7
Yankees 2

The Braves started strongly, a five-run fourth inning and the combined five-hit pitching of Mark Russo (three innings) and Max Schorr (three innings) leading them to victory.

Russo also ignited the offense with a triple and single, Chris Cordima laced two singles, and other key safeties were by Brian Kramer, Dave Cordima and Max Schorr.

Losing pitcher Mike Giles rapped a double and single for the Yankees, Mark Rocca doubled, and singles were added by Ryan Hanigan and Bob Rawlinson.

Yankees edge Braves, 2-1, for Town Championship

Second Game Yankees 4 Braves 2

The Yankees squared the series by scoring all their runs early, which was their trademark in this series.

The winners moved ahead to stay on Rick Labbe's two-run double in the top of the first, and added single runs in the second and third stanzas. The Braves countered with a run in the first and one in the sixth.

Labbe was the hitting star with the two-run double, a solo homer and three RBI.

Singles were added by Brian Faulk, Phil Bancroft and Bob Rawlinson, while defensive standouts were 10-year-old outfielders Nishant Mehta and Josh Topp.

Dave Cordima sparked the Braves' offense with a double and single, Brian Kramer doubled and Jim Newell singled.

Mark Rocca and Ryan Hanigan pitched three innings apiece for the Yanks, combining for a four-hitter and five strikeouts.

Chris Cordima and Brian DeAngelo pitched well for the Braves.

Third Game

Yankees 7
Braves 3

After spotting the Braves a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, the champs jumped all over them with four runs in the bottom of the first and three more in the second.

The Braves fought back with a pair in the third inning, but Yankee hurlers Mark Rocca and Ryan Hanigan shut them out the rest of the way.

Rocca and Hanigan once again pitched three innings apiece, Hanigan not allowing any runs and the tandem pooling talents for a five-hitter and five strikeouts.

Rocca drove in three runs with a double and triple, and Bob Rawlinson also keyed the attack in the deciding game with a double, single and two RBI.

Rick Labbe, Scott Mackin and Phil Bancroft contributed singles.

Andover Early Childhood Development Center

Andover Early Childhood Development Center offers a quality preschool experience with extended day care options. Owner Kathy Zagarella has been in the family day care business for the last twelve years. This last March she opened the Early Childhood Development Center in the building which had been her home. The class areas are bright and sun-filled and enticing toys and activities are scattered throughout. The building is situated on an acre of land, and there is a fenced play yard for the children.

The staff at the Andover Early Childhood Development Center is all OFC qualified and is highly motivated to provide each child with a positive and educational preschool experience. The teacher to pupil ratio is five to one. All staff members are trained in First Aid and CPR and attend continuing education programs for preschool and day care providers on a regular basis. Parent involvement and participation in the program at the Andover Early Childhood Development Center is welcomed and encouraged and there is an open-door visiting policy.

The day and after lunch is quiet and nap time. During the year appropriate field trips are planned for the children. This summer there is a camp program being offered, with a different activity theme each week. The regular schedule of activities will begin again in September. The school schedule follows the Andover Public School system calendar.

Bowling alley building to be foreclosed on the building to be used for retail stores. Since then, the pair has been involved in a battle with the town in their attempts to do something with the property, which remains in a state of decay and an eyesore in the middle of downtown.

The FDIC is foreclosing on the property because it now has control of Vanguard Savings Bank, the holder of one of three mortgages on the property, according to Mr. Osgood, who said $2 million is owed on the property. No date has been set for an auction.

Mr. Osgood said he has been willing all along to seek a compromise with the town in order to use his building. He even offered the town $100,000 to put toward construction of parking spaces at one point. That offer was turned down as being insufficient for the 87 parking spaces the building would need as a retail complex.

"The town is doing nothing to solve this problem other than to face it with a sledge hammer," Mr. Osgood said.

But Mr. Osgood said the foreclosure will not affect his going ahead with his court cases against the town. He said that what the town did to him constitutes a taking of his land. And he said the various special permits for reduced parking that have been granted to businesses lately in the downtown strengthen his claims.

"There hasn't been one applicant turned down," he said.

And he said he couldn't imagine the town buying the building at auction and trying to use it for anything.

"I can't even comprehend the town being that brazen."

Thomas Urbelis, town counsel, said he wanted to reserve comment on whether the foreclosure would affect the court cases.

Court cases

In a combination land- and superior-court decision last September, the town's zoning and planning boards were found to have improperly barred development of the bowling alley site. That decision also found the town's parking bylaw to be unconstitutional.

The town is appealing that decision and no date has been set for the appeal. The town filed its brief in the case in June and the owners' brief is due in the next couple of weeks, according to Mr. Urbelis.

Mr. Urbelis also confirmed that the state attorney general has taken up the case on the side of the town.

"The attorney general filed a brief in support of our position," Mr. Urbelis said.

Mr. Osgood credited the attorney general's involvement to Andover's political clout.

"Andover is going to do everything it can, politically or otherwise, to blow me out of the water," Mr. Osgood said. "And I'm going to hang in there until I die. It's a principle thing now."

$6 million case

Also, last September a federal court judge dismissed a $6 million lawsuit filed against the town by the building's owners. Judge Mark Wolf ruled Sept. 30 that the case was filed prematurely because the owners had not attempted all forms of recourse at the state level.

Reginald Marden, Mr. Osgood's attorney, said in October that Judge Wolf's ruling did not consider the land court decision against the town, and that the case will be refiled. The case claims $6 million in damages for holding up development of the property since 1987.

Mr. Osgood said the federal case might take 10 years, but he plans to pursue it to the end. He has no choice because of the money owed on it, he said.

For $6 million from the town, he would walk away from the court cases and the building, if the town wanted it.

"Probably for $6 million we'd give them title to the building. Probably the bank would walk away," he said. "We've always been willing to compromise this thing and work it out."

Awareness of Made in USA label on the rise

By Robert E. Swift

With growing awareness of the strong link between U.S. job losses and rising imports, it is not surprising that more Americans want to know where a product was made before they buy it.

Research shows that country-of-origin is now more important than brand when U.S. consumers shop for clothing and home textiles.

Price remains an important factor, but that increasingly leads consumers to Made in U.S.A. The average consumer price of imported apparel has equaled or exceeded the average price of U.S.-made apparel since 1985. As textile-product imports have gained U.S. market share, their price has escalated faster than the price of U.S.-made goods.

U.S. textile products have something else in their favor. Numerous studies have consistently shown that consumers consider the quality of U.S.-made clothing to be superior to the quality of foreign-made, particularly clothing from the Far East, where workers' wages are as meager as 24 cents an hour in China and 18 cents in Indonesia.

This preference for U.S. made is not new. In the mid-1980s, the Good Housekeeping Institute asked women to rate the quality of U.S.-made clothing and Far East-made clothing on a scale of 0-10. Nearly 80 percent ranked Made in U.S.A. at seven or higher while only 30 percent ranked Far Eastern clothing at seven or higher. A 1989 Yankelovich study for Time and CNN found that 82 percent of consumers believed the United States made better quality clothing than other nations.

In the 1990s, concern over job losses has reinforced consumers' motivation to look for a Made in U.S.A. label.

An April 1993 study by Demand Factors found that almost three times as many women agreed that people who buy foreign-made products are helping put Americans out of work, versus those who disagreed.

This is also supported by new research by Issues & Answers Network, which found that approximately 74 percent said they now pay more attention to labels that tell them where a product was made than they did two years ago. This same research found that over 52 percent of the people interviewed felt that stores did not make it easy enough to find U.S.-made clothing and home-textile products.

When U.S.-made clothing is prominently identified as such, recent in-store sales tests in Tennessee and Ohio showed that sales of the identified items increased by 24 percent.

Such research findings should serve as a wake-up call to clothing and home textile retailers. They can provide what consumers want and increase sales by making it easier to find U.S.-made products in their stores.

Robert E. Swift is executive director of the Crafted with Pride in U.S.A. Council, headquartered in New York City.

Research shows that country-of-origin is now more important than brand when U.S. consumers shop for clothing and home textiles.

NFL has a winning way to decorate walls for fall

Someone has finally come up with fall decoration worthy of the football fanatic in America's households - official National Football League wallpaper and borders.

Village's NFL line of wallpapers and borders pay homage to each of the NFL clubs in team colors. The borders have your favorite team's logo and the wallpaper has coordinating color or stripes.

The borders are a snap to apply, thanks to new "peel and hang" technology.

Decorating experts at Village say you don't need water or wallpaper adhesive. Just remove the backing to expose the sticky surface and place the border where you want it.

Even if you're a rookie, the experts say, your finished job will look like it was done by a pro.

And the border can easily be repositioned. You can change its position for up to a week before the adhesive becomes permanent.

For information on where to find the National Football League collection, call 1-800-552-9255.

Finally, computer books that aren't deadly dull

At Sybex Computer Books, they take computer books seriously. So seriously, in fact, that one series they publish is irreverent. Fun to read, even.

The new Murphy's Laws series is written for people who find the books on DOS more daunting than DOS itself or are still looking for a perfectly-clear WordPerfect manual.

They're the people "for whom the computer is not an obsession but simply a means to an end," Sybex publisher Alan Oakes writes in his introduction to the Summer 1993 Sybex Catalog.

The Murphy's Laws books cover DOS, Word for Windows and Excel, Word Perfect for DOS, and more are planned. Editing is tight, explanations concise.

"If one word will do to explain a point, we don't use two," Mr. Oakes says. "We understand that most people don't read computer books for pleasure."

Even so, these books are entertaining. Consider the laws that introduce each chapter of "Murphy's Laws of DOS," written by Charlie Russel.

There's Denno's Law: "To err is human, but it takes a computer to really screw things up."

Or Cathy's postulate: "If you hit two keys on the keyboard, the one you don't want will appear on the screen."

Chapter subheads include: "Annoying Error Messages and How to Defeat Them;" "My Mouse Went Berserk;" and "Loathsome Background Information You Can Skip."

Or this tidbit: "If you take a low-density disk and format it as a high-density disk ... sooner or later, you'll get one of those 'sector not found' error messages, which translates loosely as, 'You're hosed, pal!'"

Besides being wryly entertaining, each book in the series has an especially large index with extensive cross references. Anyone who has ever been frustrated when trying to find why their computer is doing something weird should appreciate that.

The Sybex Murphy's Laws books are available at local bookstores, or call Sybex at 1-800-227-2346 for information.

Or write to Sybex Computer Books, 2021 Challenger Drive, Alameda, Calif. 94501

Registry to begin automated testing of license applicants

Jerold A. Gnazzo, registrar of motor vehicles, announced a new method of testing license applicants by implementing automated testing.

The introduction of automated testing replaces the time-consuming written examinations.

License applicants are seated in front of a computer terminal and immediately begin to take their test.

The automated testing offers applicants 10 questions selected from a data base of more than 100 questions. Applicants must answer seven out of 10 questions correctly to pass.

Some of the questions include colorful graphics. Testing is available in Spanish with additional foreign language exams scheduled in the future. Verbal examinations in English and Spanish are also available.

One of the biggest advantages of the new automated testing is that clerks can process applicants more quickly because the system automatically grades the test and displays the grade.

Written examinations took an hour or more. Automated testing takes less than 15 minutes.

Automated license testing makes it possible to provide learner's permit examinations on a walk-in basis during scheduled hours.

Walk-in examinations eliminate a trip to the registry to make an exam appointment. This will eliminate 250,000 registry visits per year.

Automated license testing is available at all registry branch offices and at the Registry of Motor Vehicles headquarters at 100 Nashua St., Boston.

Decorative faucets making a splash with homeowners

One of the newest upscale faucet collections, for instance, features fully integrated styling for sink, shower and tub.

Every faucet in this wonderfully affordable Monticello collection from Moen, available in your choice of classic chrome, polished brass or a combination of chrome and polished brass finishes, is designed for complete coordination throughout the bath. Quality features include:

- Elegant and sweeping faucet spout, designed for convenience by providing plenty of room underneath;

- Integrated lift-rod knob and aerator, sculpted to match the rest of the faucet. No "tacked-on" look;

- A new styled aerator hidden to complement Monticello's smooth lines but still featuring Moen's high-standard, patented assembly design that saves both water and energy.

The aerator is extremely durable, easily serviced and simple to replace if ever necessary.

The shower handle's hot/cold indicators are printed (not a decal) for easier detection of temperature directions and some models will even automatically maintain the selected temperature.

All faucets come complete with the company's patented, washerless cartridge system for virtually maintenance-free service and are supported by a lifetime limited warranty.

Awareness of Made in USA label on the rise

By Robert E. Swift

With growing awareness of the strong link between U.S. job losses and rising imports, it is not surprising that more Americans want to know where a product was made before they buy it.

Research shows that country-of-origin is now more important than brand when U.S. consumers shop for clothing and home textiles.

Price remains an important factor, but that increasingly leads consumers to Made in U.S.A. The average consumer price of imported apparel has equaled or exceeded the average price of U.S.-made apparel since 1985. As textile-product imports have gained U.S. market share, their price has escalated faster than the price of U.S.-made goods.

U.S. textile products have something else in their favor. Numerous studies have consistently shown that consumers consider the quality of U.S.-made clothing to be superior to the quality of foreign-made, particularly clothing from the Far East, where workers' wages are as meager as 24 cents an hour in China and 18 cents in Indonesia.

This preference for U.S. made is not new. In the mid-1980s, the Good Housekeeping Institute asked women to rate the quality of U.S.-made clothing and Far East-made clothing on a scale of 0-10. Nearly 80 percent ranked Made in U.S.A. at seven or higher while only 30 percent ranked Far Eastern clothing at seven or higher. A 1989 Yankelovich study for Time and CNN found that 82 percent of consumers believed the United States made better quality clothing than other nations.

In the 1990s, concern over job losses has reinforced consumers' motivation to look for a Made in U.S.A. label.

An April 1993 study by Demand Factors found that almost three times as many women agreed that people who buy foreign-made products are helping put Americans out of work, versus those who disagreed.

This is also supported by new research by Issues & Answers Network, which found that approximately 74 percent said they now pay more attention to labels that tell them where a product was made than they did two years ago. This same research found that over 52 percent of the people interviewed felt that stores did not make it easy enough to find U.S.-made clothing and home-textile products.

When U.S.-made clothing is prominently identified as such, recent in-store sales tests in Tennessee and Ohio showed that sales of the identified items increased by 24 percent.

Such research findings should serve as a wake-up call to clothing and home textile retailers. They can provide what consumers want and increase sales by making it easier to find U.S.-made products in their stores.

Robert E. Swift is executive director of the Crafted with Pride in U.S.A. Council, headquartered in New York City.

NFL has a winning way to decorate walls for fall

Someone has finally come up with fall decoration worthy of the football fanatic in America's households — official National Football League wallpaper and borders.

Village's NFL line of wallpapers and borders pay homage to each of the NFL clubs in team colors. The borders have your favorite team's logo and the wallpaper has coordinating color or stripes.

The borders are a snap to apply, thanks to new "peel and hang" technology.

Decorating experts at Village say

you don't need water or wallpaper adhesive. Just remove the backing to expose the sticky surface and place the border where you want it.

Even if you're a rookie, the experts say, your finished job will look like it was done by a pro.

And the border can easily be repositioned. You can change its position for up to a week before the adhesive becomes permanent.

For information on where to find the National Football League collection, call 1-800-552-9255.

Special sections coming up include: Travel & Leisure, next week, Aug. 5; Kitchen Modernization, Aug. 12; Antiques, Aug. 19; and Back to School, Aug. 26.

Finally, computer books that aren't deadly dull

At Sybex Computer Books, they take computer books seriously. So seriously, in fact, that one series they publish is irreverent. Fun to read, even.

The new Murphy's Laws series is written for people who find the books on DOS more daunting than DOS itself or are still looking for a perfectly clear WordPerfect manual.

They're the people "for whom the computer is not an obsession but simply a means to an end," Sybex publisher Alan Oakes writes in his introduction to the Summer 1993 Sybex Catalog.

The Murphy's Laws books cover DOS, Word for Windows and Excel, Word Perfect for DOS, and more are planned. Editing is tight, explanations concise.

"If one word will do to explain a point, we don't use two," Mr. Oakes says. "We understand that most people don't read computer books for pleasure."

Even so, these books are entertaining. Consider the laws that introduce each chapter of "Murphy's Laws of DOS," written by Charlie Russel.

There's Denno's Law: "To err is

human, but it takes a computer to really screw things up."

Or Cathy's postulate: "If you hit two keys on the keyboard, the one you don't want will appear on the screen."

Chapter subheads include: "Annoying Error Messages and How to Defeat Them;" "My Mouse Went Berserk;" and "Loathsome Background Information You Can Skip."

Or this tidbit: "If you take a low-density disk and format it as a high-density disk ... sooner or later, you'll get one of those 'sector not found' error messages, which translates loosely as, 'You're hosed, pal!'"

Besides being wryly entertaining, each book in the series has an especially large index with extensive cross references. Anyone who has ever been frustrated when trying to find why their computer is doing something weird should appreciate that.

The Sybex Murphy's Laws books are available at local bookstores, or call Sybex at 1-800-227-2346 for information.

Or write to Sybex Computer Books, 2021 Challenger Drive, Alameda, Calif. 94501

For most Americans, shoes are a pain

Shoes and feet may seem like a natural match, but for many Americans, this marriage is on the rocks.

In a recent Dr. Scholl's shoe survival survey, 90 percent of adults said they feel like slipping off their shoes for relief during the day. More than half said they had done it in the past few hours, while a third said they'd done it within the hour. The most common places to do it are home, the office, at a party or on public transportation.

"Shoes may protect the feet, but they aren't always comfortable," says Dr. Michael Settecase, medical director of the Chicago Osteopathic Medical Centers and a member of the Dr. Scholl's Foot Health Council.

"In fact, a majority of those surveyed believe it's normal to have foot pain from shoes. But it's not normal."

Shoes cause more than two-thirds of foot problems for the 80 percent of Americans who suffer from them. Interestingly, in cultures where shoes are not worn, only 3 percent of adults complain of foot problems.

Shoes are the culprit because they are made in a limited number of sizes and widths. However, feet come in an infinite variety of shapes and are always changing size due to age, temperature and time of day.

Foot and heel pain and tired, achy feet are often the result of poor fit, inadequate padding or not enough support in the shoes.

If ignored, foot problems can lead to ankle, knee and back pain, says Dr. Settecase.

Feet have a natural fat padding that provides a cushion. But it begins to break down in women during their late 20s and men in their late 30s. Dr. Settecase recommends putting additional cushioning in shoes to offset the constant changes in the feet.

Dr. Scholl's recently introduced a new line of insoles and inserts made of high-tech materials specifically tailored to provide comfort for various shoe types, including dress, casual and athletic for both men and women.

"Their insoles absorb the shock of impact as the foot strikes the ground, providing extra padding where you need it most," says Dr. Settecase.

He also has a few tips to help you get a better fit when purchasing shoes. Buy shoes later in the day when feet are naturally enlarged, he says. And have a salesperson measure your feet. Then, test for proper fit by taking a short walk in the store.

Pay proper attention to your bedroom decor

By Kathie Lee Gifford

Did you know that we can spend an average of 60 hours a week in our bedrooms - that's more than four months of each year! Not only do we sleep there, but 58 percent use it for talking on the phone (me), 26 percent for exercising, 46 percent for watching television, 22 percent working and 18 percent eating.

That's a multi-purpose room if there ever was one. So decorating today's bedroom is more important than ever.

The obvious place to start is the bed, where a quality mattress really counts. After deciding on style and size, be sure to familiarize yourself with the various benefits of the three different kinds of mattresses - innerspring, foam and flotation - and pick the one that fits your needs best. We chose a comfy, four-poster, canopied bed to go with our home's rustic architecture.

Once you've chosen your bed, build the rest of your room around it, beginning with night stands that are the right height for easy reach to hold all your goodies - a lamp, phone, alarm clock/radio and other necessities.

Storage space is also an important element in bedroom design. Make sure your night stand and bureaus have enough drawers. Consider buying an armoire if your closets are crammed.

And make sure you have plenty of cabinetry to house the electronic toys of the 1990's, television, VCR and CD player.

Know your colors

Remember, cool colors are relaxing, while bright colors are stimulating.

Our bedroom has an overall blue color scheme. The canopy and bedspread are done in a blue, red, orange, pink and yellow floral print on a white background, with a plaid duvet in darker tones of the same color combination. The chairs are upholstered in a blue-and-white checked gingham, and a blue, waffle-texture area rug ties the various prints and plaids together.

Since the bedroom is the easiest room in the house to redecorate, you might want to use neutral colors for the walls, ceiling and floor and use linens to change the room's mood from time to time. You can go more masculine one season with bold geometric patterned sheets and a duvet in stark white, black and beige, complemented at the window by Roman shades in a matching solid color.

Call 1-800-521-HOME for a free copy of the Home Furnishings Council's "Haven" decorating guide. Send decorating questions to Kathie Lee, c/o the Home Furnishings Council, 407 Philadelphia Pike, Wilmington, Dela. 19809.
